Perspectives:

Library Computers, a Necessity in Today's World

Libraries have always worked to support changing needs of their communities including providing current technologies. Computer use has grown tremendously over the years, and our seven Westport Library public computers are in demand. Not everyone has the availability of a computer or a fast connection to the internet at home.

Internet access—perhaps once considered a mere convenience for patrons—has become a necessity. Our staff members support a growing number of computer-based tasks. Writing a resume, job searching, and submitting an on-line job application are daily routines in an ever-fluctuating economy. Applying to college, completing tutorials and taking online exams proctored by a staff member take place in our Library. Students of all ages research professional articles for course work. Health databases assist individuals with current medical questions.

Tasks completed on our computers include paying bills and printing forms from a website. Some patrons just stop in to check on local and global news and weather, check email, and print important messages. Microsoft Office products (Word, PowerPoint, Excel) are used daily with staff providing help with formatting and layout.

On a lighter note, individuals visit social media sites such as Facebook and YouTube. People locate coupons, boarding passes, recipes and concert tickets. Some visit with flashdrives to complete last-minute printing when their own printers have run out of ink. Wireless laptops, tablets, and smartphones are used to access our Wi-Fi Network.

One of our patrons, who doesn't have a computer at home, visits the Library four to five days a week. When asked how he uses the computer he responded with the following: check status of holds/checkouts/email; buy books online; research diseases, cooking, health; keep up on sports events not covered in regular media such as sailing; use Wikipedia to look up arcane words such as "spittle". His special interest: reading 8th-15th c. medieval history.

And, of course, our computers are used daily to search books, music and DVDs throughout the SAILS Library Network. Please stop by and ask a staff member to assist you with using SAILS.

Our computer area is truly a community meeting place that encourages friendships and collaboration. People meet at the Library to help one another with computer-related questions and have forged friendships through common interests.

A Chat with...Logan Deree

By Denise Micale

Logan, an 8th grader at Westport Middle School, is spearheading a book drive by the National Junior Honor Society to benefit the upcoming FOWL book sale.

Nice to meet you, Logan. On behalf of FOWL, thank you and your fellow JHS members for the upcoming book drive at the Middle School. Tell me about your project.

We've publicized it with handouts, projects and announcements at the Middle School and will be collecting young adult and children's books for two weeks. I hope to collect a number of boxes of books to donate to the Book Sale. Last year, the Honor Society did a clothes drive for Project 351. It took days to sort through all the clothes!

Tell me a little bit about yourself.

I moved to Westport from Rochester when I was four years old. I live with my parents, my older sister and our cat Boomer. We got him on July 4th so he was named in honor of fireworks. I play clarinet in the school band and recently took a RISD class on traditional style cartoon drawing. It took over three hours to draw a sequence that became a five second cartoon of a man being chased by a ghost down a hallway!

Do you have a favorite book genre?

I like fiction and action adventure. I once bought Dark Life by Kat Falls at a book sale for $3.00. I also have the sequel, Riptide, which is about gangs in an underwater city. It's a Hunger Games type of story.

Who has made a difference in your life?

My third grade teacher, Mr. Tetrault, was a big influence on me. He was my first male teacher and made it fun to go to school. He even kept a pet turtle in his classroom!

What would surprise people who know you to learn about you?

I like a good romance novel, like the Legend trilogy series by Mary Liu.

Any plans for the summer?

I'm kind of an indoor person, but I hope to try to get outside more this summer, maybe play some badminton or ping pong.

You're entering high school next fall. What have you taken away from your time at the Middle School?

I've learned "you can't judge a book by its cover" and people can surprise you by contributions they make.

August 14: The Language of Flowers

Vanessa Diffenbaugh

The Victorian language of flowers was used to convey romantic expressions: honeysuckle for devotion, asters for patience, and red roses for love. But for Victoria Jones, it's been more useful in communicating mistrust and solitude. After a childhood spent in the foster-care system, she is unable to get close to anybody, and her only connection to the world is through flowers.

September 11: The Elegance of the Hedgehog

Muriel Barbery

We are in the center of Paris, in an elegant apartment building inhabited by bourgeois families. Renée, the concierge, is witness to the lavish but vacuous lives of her numerous employers. Translated from the French.

Your VOTE,
Please!

Harvard University recently initiated a six year program to integrate its three main museums: The Fogg Museum, the Busch-Reisinger Museum and the Arthur M. Sackler Museum. These three museums were integrated into the Fogg Museum with the addition of two stories on top of the Fogg. The addition was designed by Renzo Piano.

Here is our question: is there enough interest from our FOWL members to spend $250.00 to purchase a one year season pass to the Harvard Art Museums? From your emailed newsletter, print this page and complete the box below (or fill out one from a hard copy) and proceed to the Library. There you'll find a box for votes. Thanks.

School's Out! Reinventing Summer Reading

By Denise Micale

The end of the school year, eagerly anticipated by kids everywhere, may mean the beginning of the often dreaded summer reading season for parents and guardians. Educators increasingly decry the “summer slide” in literacy skills their students experience which can affect success in school in all areas, not only reading. However, a recent Washington Post article by Dr. Erin Kelly noted studies show that students who read just four to six books over the summer maintain their skills. Literacy experts note that students who love the books they read become lifelong proficient readers and learners. Busy parents want their kids to avoid the slide but also want them to have a fun-filled and relaxing summer. So what can we do to avoid the summer slide, encourage a lifelong love of reading and help students embrace that summer reading list?

1. Set a consistent time each day for reading and read together (same or different books) if at all possible. Read aloud to your readers. Flexibility around trips and special family events is OK.
2. Talk about what you and your readers are reading daily. Ask specific questions about the characters, the plot, the setting, etc, and what your readers think about the book. It's OK if he/she doesn't like it! Talking about it might help you and your student find books he/she does like.
3. Tie the book into an activity, such as art, craft, food, outing or game. Make an appointment to take your younger child to read to Rosie, the Tail Waggin' Tutors Reading Program Dog at the Westport Free Public Library.
4. Help your readers start a summer book club to read and discuss the book with friends and classmates. Check out www.scholastic.com and www.hubpages.com for tips and ideas on how to start a kids' book club.
5. Go online together to research the book and author, and to find interesting discussion questions and background information.
6. Make a trip to the library or bookstore and let your readers select books for summer reading. Help your readers select books at a comfortable level. If a child makes five or more errors in reading a page of fifty words, the book is too challenging. Some children may select books above or below their reading levels to share with siblings, and this is perfectly ok.
7. Encourage your readers to write this summer, too. It doesn't have to be about what they are reading. They can write their own story or poem and even illustrate it.

Encourage your children not to limit summer reading to books. They can read sports pages, magazines, and so on.

For more reading tips, go to www.summerlearning.org, www.pbs.org and www.readwritethink.org to learn about creative ways to encourage a love of reading this summer—and beyond.

Mystery Spotlight

David Baldacci

By Carol Vidal

David Baldacci has written another bestseller. His latest book, Memory Man, can be added to a long list of blockbuster books (29) in a twenty year writing career beginning with Absolute Power. Whether you have read one or several of his books, you'll recognize his distinct writing style.

Suspenseful and mesmerizing, his thrillers have compelling and interesting supporting characters who mesh well, giving the reader a hard-to-put-down thriller. Baldacci's numerous, sudden and unexpected plot twists grab the reader's interest throughout his books.

In addition to his stand-alone novels, some books are part of a series which include the King and Maxwell team. These former secret service agents have compromised their original careers so they are now running a private investigation agency. The Will Robie books are based on a cold, ruthless hitman hired by the government as a last resort when all other agencies fail and the John Puller books are based on a combat veteran and military investigator who strives for the truth. One of his best known series is the Camel Club. Each man in the Club has special skills in fighting crime in the Washington, D.C. area. His A. Shaw series is about a band of highly trained government endorsed agents pursuing the most notorious criminals.

His latest book, Memory Man, is his first in a future series of books introducing Amos Decker. Decker has an unusual ability. Due to a football accident, he is unable to forget anything. He becomes a successful detective but when his entire family is murdered he is pitted against an unknown killer who clearly makes this personal. Decker's unique ability creates an intense, plot twisting pursuit of an equally intelligent protagonist.
